Builders with low project numbers may indicate that they also work labour only or may have been appointed builder after the Building Consent was issued. There has been a marked increase in some builders' pipelines due to a trend of builders being appointed for blocks of residential developments rather than on a house by house basis. This inflates the $value and reduces the number of projects until more detail is available.

Builders with the highest TOTAL NUMBER of residential projects

This table displays the data by the Number of Projects in descending order to highlight those builders with a larger number of projects. Most of these companies tend to build single dwellings and the occasional multiple dwellings and are traditionally referred to as Residential House Builders.

Builders with low project numbers may indicate that they also work labour only or may have been appointed builder after the Building Consent was issued.

There has been a marked increase in some builders' pipelines due to a trend of builders being appointed for blocks of residential developments rather than on a house by house basis. This inflates the $value and reduces the number of projects until more detail is available.

Builders with the highest Number of Dwellings for residential projects

This table displays the data by the total number of dwellings in descending order to highlight those builders with higher number of dwellings on their projects. These companies tend to be involved with apartments, residential super lots and or retirement dwelling and facilities. There is a significant overlap between these companies and the traditional Residential House Builders when it comes to our clients supplying goods and services to these companies.

Background information about the data

Based on Pacifecon data for the year ending 31 March 2019.

Includes any projects planned, underway or completed in 2018/19 (not just consented).

By the number of projects the breakdown is 92.6% historical & 7.4% planned.

By $ value the breakdown is 48.8% historical & 51.2% planned, this is because of the high value of retirement based projects, an increase in multi dwelling developments and large residential developments especially in Auckland.

Based on the company's role within a project, other projects where the company is not the builder have not been included.

Based on the number of projects (not individual dwellings) and includes apartments, retirement based residential activity and large residential developments where preferred builders have been appointed and which may take several years to complete.

We have listed Retirement Developers when the project that they have planned has not had a builder appointed yet. The idea is to provide better visibility of the intention in this market sector.

To get the best out of this information it can be used in conjunction with our Online Service to look at the individual project detail for the companies you intend to contact.

Individual summary figures may have been adjusted due to additional information being available from other sources.

Regional reports are based on where the company's office is situated and not where projects are located. We summarised the data this way so that the company's pipeline work is included this give our clients better visibility of future potential work rather than a project by project basis.
